PW: What was it about Ms. Hope that you enjoyed?

MN: I felt really comfortable with her and she seemed to really care about every single one of her students and what was going on in their lives. She was the first teacher who noticed that I had vision problems, and she was also the first teacher to notice that I was getting picked on by another kid at school.

PW: Did you not have glasses until she noticed?

MN: No, I got my glasses in grade four with Ms. Hope. And I never knew the things being written on the board weren't squiggly lines until I got my glasses. [Laughter]
